Re: In regard to the change in El Dorado County low vulnerability status.
Comments to A-2239(a)-(c)

By removing our low vulnerability status and subjecting us to this “one size fits all” approach you are doing all the small farms and business a huge disservice. California has very diverse agricultural territories and to treat all the lands the same with regards to rainfall, drainage, presence or absence of groundwater basins and specific water quality concerns would not make sense.

All the new requirements will lead to increased cost of doing business for all involved. The existing irrigated lands program has been very successful addressing the surface water quality and other issues. Why change something that is currently working for those involved at the expense of those doing business in the area?

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Kristie Lamb
