Growing up on the sacramento river I have seen these species numbers deteriate as the water was more and more being sent to bigger and bigger Agricultural. To choose export almonds over species that can not be replaced is not only deplorable but reckless as well. Past time to curb this unsustainable practice

Once these species are gone, like the passenger pigeon, they are gone forever. People object to a slightly different taste in their water and it being a bit warmer? So you immediately buckled under, and didn't pursue your plan to save the colder water for the fish. Humans can adapt their drinking water tastes. Fish can not adapt to zero water.
