To all concerned

It really surprises me that someone would put animals of any species above the importance of humans. There have been many animals that have become extinct and the Earth is still here and the people are still here. But the water issue in California will not extinct this fish because they exist in other states. These fish will either adapt to survive or they will leave the area or die.

Water does not belong to any one person or company. It comes from the sky and all people should have access to it.

Growing food for this nation is much more important than any species of animal or fish.
